PASTOR’S MESSAGE

Dear Parishioners,

Today we have the Parable of the Envious Servants. The word en-vy comes from the Latin in-vidia, in meaning ‘against’ and video meaning ‘to see’. Envy is a sorrow or sadness at another person’s good. This refers to the words of the landowner at the end of the parable: “Or are you en-vious because I am generous?” In Greek, the expression is: ὁ ὀφθαλμός σου πονηρός ἐστὶν ὅτι ἐγὼ ἀγαθός εἰμι - literally, “Is your eye evil because I am good?” The “evil eye” expresses the concept of in-vidia. The people who came first were grieved because of the recompense received by those who came last. In the parable, the Landowner is God, who went out to hire laborers for His vineyard. The day represents the history of mankind. The evening represents the end of the age, when He gives the workers their reward. His vineyard is the Kingdom of God. The marketplace represents the world. THE FIRST LABORERS can be understood as representing the Jewish people: 1- They were the first called by God. 2- They “bore the day’s burden and the heat.” This can be understood as referring to the burden of the Law. THE LAST ONES can be understood as representing the Gentiles. God, the Landowner, says to them: “Why do you stand here idle all day?” Their idleness can represent those who did not yet know God or did not care about God and their own salvation. They answer Him: “Because no one has hired us.” No one was sent to us; no one told us about Your vineyard, that is, Your Kingdom. Then comes payment time: “When it was evening, the owner of the vineyard said to his foreman, ‘Call the laborers and give them their pay.’” The evening can represent the end of our earthly life and, ultimately, the end of the age. Beginning with the last and ending with the first, they received a denarius, representing salvation. When the first workers came, “they grumbled against the landowner” because they saw a disproportion in what the others received: “These last ones worked only one hour, and you have made them equal to us, who bore the day’s burden and the heat.” Their complaint was not that they had been deprived of their rightful recompense. Their problem was that the others had received the same reward. This is the heart of envy: the envious person suffers at other’s success as at their own loss. To the first workers, God shows Himself JUST, according to justice: “Friend, I am doing you no wrong; did you not agree with me for the usual daily wage?” The landowner had made an agreement with the first workers when he hired them. But to the last workers, He shows Himself GENEROUS, according to mercy: “What if I wish to give this last one the same as you?” And then: “Am I not free to do as I wish with my own money?” Finally, He asks the question that reveals the condition of the heart: “Are you envious because I am generous?” In the Greek text, this is expressed even more vividly: “Is your eye evil because I am good?” The problem is not that God is unjust. The problem is that the workers have an evil eye - they cannot rejoice in the goodness shown to another. Let us ask our Blessed Mother that we may rejoice at other’s success.

OSPEL Matthew 20.1-16 of Sun September 20

Jesus spoke this parable to his disciples: The kingdom of heaven is like a landowner who went out early in the morning to hire labourers for his vineyard. After agreeing with the labourers for the usual daily wage, he sent them into his vineyard. When he went out about nine oclock, he saw others standing idle in the marketplace; and he said to them, You also go into the vineyard, and I will pay you whatever is right.So they went.When he went out again about noon and about three o’clock, he did the same. And about five o’clock he went out and found others standing around; and he said to them, Why are you standing here idle all day? They said to him, Because no one has hired us. He said to them, You also go into the vineyard. When evening came, the owner of the vineyard said to his manager, Call the labourers and give them their pay, beginning with the last and then going to the first. When those hired about five o’clock came, each of them received the usual daily wage. Now when the first came, they thought they would receive more; but each of them also received the usual daily wage. And when they received it, they grumbled against the landowner, saying, These last worked only one hour, and you have made them equal to us who have borne the burden of the day and the scorching heat. But he replied to one of them, Friend, I am doing you no wrong; did you not agree with me for the usual daily wage? Take what belongs to you and go; I choose to give to this last the same as I give to you. Am I not allowed to do what I choose with what belongs to me? Or are you envious because I am generous? So the last will be first, and the first will be last.
